ORBIT MEDIA GROUP PARTNERS WITH STARLIGHT CHILDREN'S FOUNDATION ON INTERACTIVE CHILDREN'S STORYBOOK APP: "COWBOYS & ALIENS: THE KIDS"

Proceeds from Every App Sold to Benefit Seriously Ill Children in the U.S. & Abroad

Los Angeles, CA (August 3, 2011) – Orbit Media Group, LLC, a boutique consulting, idea factory and product acceleration firm, has announced a partnership with global charity Starlight Children's Foundation, whereby Orbit will make a donation from each sale of Orbit's new interactive children's storybook App "Cowboys & Aliens: The Kids" to the Starlight Foundation. The partnership comes in the wake of entertainment company Platinum Studios (OTCBB: PDOS) licensing the original story from Platinum CEO Scott Mitchell Rosenberg, who created the New York Times best-selling graphic novel and recently released blockbuster movie, Cowboys & Aliens, for Orbit to create an interactive storybook application for all Apple iOS and select Android OS devices.

Orbit is also proud to be partnered with Julia Delany and Kimon Taliadoros from Australian company Hub4Content on the marketing of the App Book.

Orbit's founder, Chris Adams, has worked with companies like Facebook, Amazon.com and Glam Media and helped Jeff Skoll build Participant Media, serving as the company's chief vision officer through its initial slate of films including Syriana, Good Night and Good Luck and the Academy Award-winning An Inconvenient Truth. It was while at Participant that Adams met Starlight co-founder Peter Samuelson, who served on Participant's advisory board during Adams' tenure there. Inspired by the Participant model he helped to foster – that of content helping advance social causes – it was a natural partnership when creating the "Cowboys & Aliens: The Kids" App Book.

For nearly 30 years, Starlight (www.starlight.org) has been dedicated to helping seriously ill children and their families cope with their pain, fear and isolation through entertainment, education and family activities. Through a network of offices, Starlight provides ongoing support to children, parents and siblings in all U.S. states and Canadian provinces. Programs are also delivered internationally through affiliates in Australia, Japan and the United Kingdom.

“We are very pleased to team with Starlight on this exciting project,” stated Adams. “The work Starlight has done for nearly three decades to benefit seriously ill children and their families is nothing short of phenomenal, and with this App, we hope to empower children to read, paint and share, and for their parents, who buy the App, to help kids worldwide through Starlight.”

“We are extremely appreciative of Orbit and the generosity of all those who helped launch this wonderful initiative,” said Samuelson. “In receiving proceeds from the sales of ‘Cowboys & Aliens: The Kids,’ Starlight is able to continue its mission of brightening the world for seriously ill children. It’s great to see how this App will serve a dual purpose – providing entertainment for the general public and helping better the lives of the seriously ill children and families Starlight serves.”

“Cowboys & Aliens: The Kids” retails for $4.99 and is currently available in the Apple App Stores. The Android version will follow later in August.

In “Cowboys & Aliens: The Kids,” three children – a Western cowboy, a Native American, and a space alien – meet and become friends while playing with their toys. The App Book features a breadth of voice narration, painting functionality, sharing and customization of characters using photos from one’s photo library, plus social sharing via Facebook, Twitter and e-mail.
